

Older Persons Mental Health First Aid

Do you care for, live or work with older people who may be developing mental health problems?
If you answered yes, then this FREE training may be for you.

What is Older Persons Mental Health First Aid?

This course trains people who care for, live or work with older people to recognise and respond appropriately to older people who may be developing mental health problems, rather than waiting until a mental health crisis develops before taking action.

This course has been informed by the expert consensus of consumer advocates, carers and professionals with experience in dementia and delirium. Older Persons Mental Health First Aid training teaches skills in how to support an older person experiencing depression, anxiety, confusion and dementia, psychosis and a range of mental health crises.
